

CONTEMPORARY ENVIRONMENTAL LITERATURE

climates of change

How can we better understand and respond to the climate crisis? How does climate justice relate to racial and economic justice? How do we build community in these times? How can we address the current crisis but live with joy and hope?

Come take a course with a multidisciplinary approach to these questions. We'll read literature alongside statistics, history, politics, ethics, economics, marketing, and development studies. Together we'll create infographics, speculative fiction, found poetry, and more....

Satisfies DSAS Literature and SCI
Polymathic/Humanistic Context
Gen Ed Requirements.
Satisfies electives in English;
Environmental Sc;
Environmental St;
European & Eurasian St;
W. European St.
Honors course.

Students from Pitt's campus and incarcerated students learn together

Fall 2020
Tuesdays 6-8:30 pm
Pitt Prison
Education Project
4 to 10 pm including
transport time.
Transportation provided.

Prof. Shalini Puri
spuri@pitt.edu

Permission of instructor required